

LIVING ACROSS BOUNDARIES

Mongols, Ethnicity and the Nation-State in the Twentieth Century

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Foreword: "Mongols" Across "Boundaries"	YU Hyo-Chong	003
<hr/>
Part I	Boundaries, Visible and Invisible	025
Chapter 1	The Mongols of China's Three Northeast Provinces Burensain BORJIGIN	027
I	The Formation of the Three Northeast Provinces	027
II	The Willow Palisade and the Northeast Region	033
III	The Development of Mongol Society in the Northeast Provinces	038
IV	From "Four External Banners" to Mongol Autonomous County	066
V	Bannermen Who Became Mongols	083
VI	Conclusion: Reconsidering Inner Mongolia	105
Chapter 2	Are the Daur People Mongols? : The Politics of "Ethnic Classification" and "Territorial Autonomy" YU Hyo-Chong	115
I	The "Classification" of Cross-border "Mongols" and Ethnic Classification in China	115
II	Events Preceding the Daur Classification	126
III	Daur Ethnogenesis: The Logic of Formal Recognition	151
IV	Realizing the "Ambition" of a Separate Ethnic Identity: The Rocky Road to "Territorial Autonomy"	192
V	Dreams of a Daur Script Deferred and the Politics of "Ethnic Classification" and "Territorial Autonomy"	259
Part II	Boundaries and their Transgression: Approaches and Reflections	275
Chapter 3	"Border" Crossings and Great-power Politics : Mongols, the Soviet Union, and Comintern in the Early 1920s AOKI Masahiro	277
I	The "Mongol World" of the Early Twentieth Century	277

II	Nationalist Movements in the "Mongol World" and the Formation of the Mongolian People's Government	279
III	The Soviets, Comintern, and Outer Mongolia	284
IV	Local Mongol Initiatives, the Soviets, and Comintern	296
V	Unity and Diversity of the "Mongol World," the Soviets, and Comintern	321

Chapter 4	The Dream of a Unified Script : The Movement to Cyrilicize Written Mongolian in China in the 1950s Tegus	327
I	The Language and Writing System of a Cross-border People	327
II	Origins of the Cyrilic Script Movement	331
III	Evolution of the Movement	335
IV	Frustration and Failure	350
V	The Illusive Dream of a Unified Mongolian Script	358
<hr/>
Part III	Essays	365
Essay 1	Literary Myopia in Inner Mongolia : Life and Literature in Inner Mongolia as Reflected in the Works of Ligdan SAJI Toshihiko	367
I	My First Encounter With Inner Mongolian Literature	367
II	"Minority Literature" in Inner Mongolia	370
III	Ligdan's Place in Inner Mongolian Literature	374
IV	The Cultural Revolution and Earth Declaration: The Great Quest	386
Essay 2	The Mongols and "Oriental History" in Japan MATSUEDA Itaru	393
I	The Mongols According to Hegel	393
II	The Prehistory of Oriental History in Japan	400
III	Oriental History Begins	402
IV	Modern Mongol History	407
V	Oriental History and Nationalism	412
Acknowledgements	YU Hyo-Chong	423
Index		425